Stage of Development: Your work on the issue or need is just beginning or requires more exploration to truly understand the problem and make informed change.	Stage of Development: Most/all the groundwork for your project has been completed – you firmly understand the issue(s) your project will be trying to resolve.

1: Alignment with one or more of four strategic priority areas

“Behavioral Health/SUD and Rural health.”

“Aging/older adults.”

Essential elements of the response

2: Project Description

Change occurs at a system and/or organizational level to address policies, practices and perceptions that create disproportionate barriers to health and access to care for some groups of people relative to others.

“...Many don’t have a regular income or a personal vehicle, and public transportation in rural areas is largely non-existent.

...determine the likelihood of people with SUD accessing mobile sexual and reproductive health services when coupled with harm reduction and SUD treatment services.”

“...using and honing this tool, which helps providers understand how messages and stereotypes about older people result in under-treatment, over-treatment, and poor health outcomes. All older people risk being disadvantaged in achieving full health simply because of stereotypes held by providers based on age.”

Essential elements of the response

- 3: Responds to a need or concern that is defined by the community.
- 4: Meaningful engagement of the community throughout the project.

“...women in treatment for SUD cited a “high prevalence of trauma, stigma from health care providers, distrust of the health care system, challenges planning for the future, and a perceived lack of autonomy over their reproductive health.”

“Older patients say their complaints are dismissed as “normal aging.” We will formalize the involvement of older people in this work by forming a permanent health policy advisory committee, to include older adults, care partners, and providers.”

Essential elements of the response

5: Key things you expect to accomplish during the planning or implementation period. Community weighs-in on success.

“...Development of interview/survey tools - Training of staff to conduct interviews/surveys - 300 participants/patients complete interviews/surveys - Participant/patient data is analyzed to implement operational changes and determine the demand for a mobile health program.”

“...hundreds of healthcare professionals have been exposed to training on age-bias and are more likely to be aware of their own bias and less likely to act on it. It means practices have disrupted outdated processes and adopted new ones to intentionally meet the needs of older patients.”
